BP-C is a blood-purifying formula designed to correct blood deficiencies and hormone imbalances associated with chronic liver problems.

Did you know?

The principal weakness associated with the Wood Element is a blood deficiency or blood dryness syndrome. The concept of blood deficiency goes beyond the simple deficiency of iron and other commonly recognized nutrients.

The principle of therapy is called Bu Xue, which means to nurture the blood. If the deficiency of blood is a prominent feature and the condition has persisted for a long time, then it is likely that the person is also suffering from a deficiency of Yin. The Wood Strengthening formulas usually contain blood tonics that also serve as Yin tonics, such as rehmannia and lycium fruit, but if signs of severe dryness and of weakness in the lower body are present, then the person may be classified as being of the Dryness Constitution and should be treated appropriately.¹
